Control Corporation Announces Partnership with Axis Communications

MINNEAPOLIS, Minnesota — April 09, 2013—Control Corporation, a leading manufacturer of industrial device communication products, today announces the official partnership with Axis Communications.

“The Axis Technology Partner Program is designed to bring to market the ‘best of class’ solutions for channel partners and their customers,” says Vince Ricco, Business Development Manager, TPP, Axis Communications, Inc. “We are excited to formally welcome Control to the program and look forward to collaborating with such an interesting partner to offer true problem solving technology solutions that go beyond common capabilities.”

Axis is the global market leader in innovative network video products for retail, transportation, critical infrastructure, perimeter security and public surveillance applications. As a member of the Axis TPP, Control will continue to improve product compatibility with Axis to increase successful product integration and enhance end user experience. Control will also continue to participate in any joint marketing activities, education, and development opportunities to further both companies’ success within the security market.

“Our customers have come to expect the very best in reliable networking solutions for the past thirty years,” says Bradford Beale, President of Control, “We are pleased to be involved in Axis’ Technology Partner Program. Our ruggedized line of RocketLinx™ Power over Ethernet switches has proven to complement the physical security solutions that Axis and its partners provide in North America, South America and Europe.”
